Human Rights board finds against Bethel in firing of female cop

Finds "reasonable grounds" to Bertram's complaint that chief sexually harassed her, and town retaliated when she reported him

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The Maine Human Rights Commission ruled Monday that "there are reasonable grounds to believe" former Bethel police officer Anne Bertram was sexually harassed while working for the town, then wrongfully dismissed for reporting that harassment.

The ruling opens the door wider for a possible lawsuit against the town.

"I'm very, very happy," Bertram said. "If we can't resolve this at the next stage, I'm ready to go all the way with it."

Town Manager Madeleine Henley said Tuesday she was taken aback by the decision. "It's up to Anne now," Henley said. "The ball's in her court."

The ruling also came as a surprise to Bertram, since the commissioners' vote overruled an earlier finding by a MHRC investigator that there was insufficient evidence to support her charges.

Bertram was not at Monday's hearing. "I didn't think I had a chance," she said. But her lawyer was present, and there was no one present to represent the town.

"I thought our lawyer was going," said Henley.

Three of the four commissioners voted to support Bertram's claims of gender bias and retaliation for reporting sexual harassment (the fourth commissioner abstained).

Bertram was employed by the town as a reserve officer in January of 1992, then promoted to a full-time officer in September of 1992.

She was fired in February 1993.

In her human rights complaint, Bertram charges that after going to full-time status she was sexually harassed by Bethel Police Chief Dale Bellman.

The investigator's report said that Bertram "was subjected to comments about sexual orientation, was not allowed to adjust the seat in the cruiser, was not allowed to have her duffle bag in the cruiser; was told she needed to move to Bethel or he (Bellman) would 'make her life miserable.'"

Bertram's complaint also charges that she was required to work a full 12-hour shift, while men on similar shifts were allowed to go home and be on-call for two hours of that time.

Bertram said she, but not male officers, was instructed not to call for

Valentine's Day votes scratched

Grant takes TIF off the table

By MICHAEL DANIELS

There'll be no TIF vote on St. Valentine's Day.

Good news on a federal infrastructure grant has forestalled the need for town voters to decide if they are willing to give up some tax revenue in order to speed up the Bethel Station project.

In November project developers floated the possibility of a TIF (tax increment financing) package for Bethel Station.

The TIF was needed, they said, to make up for likely delays in receiving federal money to finance the project's infrastructure.

Developer Heinie Merrill argued that without the TIF, the project -- and its tax stream -- would be delayed, and the town would lose even more money than the developers were seeking in tax relief ($340,000).

The town selectmen agreed to put the matter to voters, but they cautioned it would be a difficult idea to sell.

But last week the vote became unnecessary -- when the town received word it had cleared a major hurdle in its pursuit of a $400,000 federal economic development infrastructure grant.

The town doesn't yet have the grant in hand, but Bethel's application was one of five selected for Phase II of the grant process, which makes it highly likely the money will be available.

"I've never seen a town in Phase II that didn't get the money," said Town Manager Madeleine Henley.

The money would be used for infrastructure work (sewer, storm drains, water lines, sidewalks and road work) along Mechanic Street and on Lincoln Street, a main artery in Bethel Station.

The infrastructure work would in turn make it possible for developers to begin construction this year on Bethel Station's centerpiece hotel.

Selectmen won't be the ones to propose term limits

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The Bethel selectman think that if the town wants to limit the length of time they can stay in office, the idea should come from the voters, not from the selectmen themselves.

The board voted 3-2 last week not to include a term limits article in the warrant for this year's Town Meeting.

Selectmen Rick Whitney and Robert Chadbourne voted to put the article on the warrant for a June vote; Dutch Dresser, Art Gilbert and John Thurston voted against it.

"The voters can still petition for an article on the warrant if they wish," said Dresser. "All we did was vote not to put the article in ourselves. It's up to the people now if they'd like to have it included."

Whitney had proposed the article. He argued it was an important national issue and that term limits would give more people an opportunity to serve on the board.

His proposal called for selectmen to serve no more than three consecutive terms (of three years each). After serving a third term, a board member would have to take at least one year off from the board.

Dresser argued strenuously against the proposal. "I think term limits are nonsensical at both the national and local levels, and especially at the local level," he said.

"The term-limit issue at the national level is there to eliminate the accumulation of power, but I don't see any great power here in this room."

LBO/Sugarbush deal

Bear study gives pause to closing

By MICHAEL DANIELS

A pending study of environmentally sensitive bear habitat at Sugarbush Ski Resort will probably not threaten the proposed sale of the Vermont resort to Sunday River owner Les Otten, according to a Sunday River official.

Carl Spangler, director of acquisitions for Sunday River, told The Citizen Monday that a weekend report carried by the Associated Press overstated the likelihood the bear study would prove a deal breaker.

But Spangler acknowledged the Sugarbush closing is running behind schedule, and that the bear-habitat study could set things back still further.

In September Otten's company, L.B.O. Holdings, Inc., signed a letter of intent to purchase Sugarbush from Claneil Enterprises Inc., a Philadelphia-based conglomerate. L.B.O. subsequently leased Sugarbush and is operating it for the current ski season, but the proposed closing, initially projected for November, has been delayed by a number of factors.

Spangler likened the problems to those encountered in buying a new house. "You never know what the problems are until you move in," he said, "but we're working through our punch list pretty successfully."

The most critical unresolved issue is getting permission from the U.S. Forest Service to construct a eight-to-10-acre snowmaking pond near the Mad River.

Prior to 1993 Sugarbush and Vermont environmentalists had been locked in a bitter battle over the resort's plans to draw snowmaking water from the Mad River. That dispute was eventually resolved, but final Forest Service sign-off on the new pond has been slow in coming.

"We need to get the pond on the fast track so we can make snow for

Local homebrewers are hopping

By WENDY HANSCOM

After decades of peddling lowest-common-denominator lager, domestic beer conglomerates have suddenly discovered quality. Facing a declining market share, the big breweries are scrambling to come up with brews to compete with trendy "microbreweries" offering hundreds of specialty beers.

But local homebrewers are turning their backs on the corporate marketeers, raising their own pints and saying "this one's for us."

Homebrewing may be just another fad, but it's a hobby that's growing steadily here in the greater-Bethel area, and across the U.S.

Beer historians point to the Mesopotamians and Egyptians as the first makers of the brew -- 10,000 years ago.

By the middle ages, especially where the water was bad, as it usually was, most people made beer and drank it daily.

Immigrants to the U.S. brought their beer-making skills with them and before Prohibition there were thousands of small breweries in America, each making its own varieties of beer.

As towns and cities began to develop, small regional breweries took over the task of making beer,

'You can't screw it up. It would be like screwing up a microwave cookie.'

and interest in homebrewing diminished.

Prohibition wiped out scores of small breweries that couldn't make a go of producing soda or illegal beer. When Prohibition was repealed in 1933, beer making became industrialized, with large companies able to distribute their product across the country. With beer as close as any corner store, interest in homebrewing all but died.

But the hobby has been regaining popularity around the world for the past several years especially in the U.S., Canada, England and Australia, according to David Nivus of Bethel. Nivus was a brewer at Sunday River Brewing Company until he and Heather Hale opened a natural food store in Mayville.

The high tax on alcohol in some countries prompted a lot of people to try homebrewing, Nivus said. The government can't tax brews mixed up on the kitchen stove, so it's cheaper for many people to make their own.

"You can make a Budweiser-type beer cheaper than you can buy it," Nivus said. "Canada, Australia and England tax beer so heavily that interest in homebrewing there has gotten big fast."

In search of something heartier than pale American lagers, people also began to try a wide variety of imported beer in the 1970s and 80s, Nivus said.

Interest in European blends sparked the "micro brewery" trend, he said. People got a taste of low-

BLINDED BY THE LIGHT

To the Editor:

With all due respect to the presumably honest owners of the new internally lit signs that are illuminating Route 2, we have been hoodwinked. About five years ago model sign ordinances were presented to various town committees that would have prevented just this sort of visual assault, but the feeling at the time was that "businesses do a pretty good job of fitting into the community without being told how." I regret agreeing so quickly with that naive notion.

"Local control" is central to this issue. Can the voters of Bethel possibly want to allow such signs, when reasonable regulations are available? The brightest sign may attract the most customers to a given business, but the net benefit to the community and to the town's general business climate may be negative. As voters, we have a right and a duty to make town government work for the benefit of all residents.

Appropriate action might begin with an immediate moratorium on internally lit signs by the selectmen, until the sign ordinance can be amended. Further suggestions on these sorts of issues could also be directed toward members of the Bethel Comprehensive Plan Committee. Reasonable people should be able to fashion policies that benefit the general business community and local residents.

I WARNED YOU

To the Editor:

The article in last Wednesday's Citizen about the signs on Route 2 epitomized the exact warning I made through the newspaper well over a year ago. If you recall, I explained that our family was greatly instrumental in the success of the re-development of Newburyport, by forcing all to work together for one cause. Those complaining about the sign are the same ones who allowed one of our most prominent citizens to clandestinely campaign against zoning and support their candidate for selectperson. Zoning could well have addressed what everyone seems to see as a signage problem. It has been suggested that these same prominent citizens had more persons coming up with petitions to overturn a decision previously made by the Board of Selectmen in regards to Bethel Station. (Those petition experts should have been spending more time looking at signs. Who pays them anyway?) All this for their own agenda, not for the betterment of the community.

No one should be allowed their own agenda. If our laws in Bethel don't suit the agenda of a few, then they get changed or not allowed to become law at all. Let's face it. Those who are complaining are not doing so because of their lack of foresight for better signage; it's pure and simple jealousy and envy because someone else was quicker and smarter and will have a very successful business. "Big Bob's" is a welcome addition to Bethel. These people know what they are doing. It is time the IGA got some competition. Even AT&T had to start giving quality service when they no longer had a monopoly. Competition is healthy.

In one of our town meetings our historical society leader said nothing or very little about the control of building in the Mayville section but was concerned about the size of a damned window in Dr. DiMarco's office. Who's agenda was this? Let us not forget about the famous "people's right's attorney" who held up the entire process of Bethel Station at the "people's right's expense." What an agenda that was!

At another town meeting the headmaster of Gould Academy suggested that a bridge to Bethel Station be at the foot of Church Street because it was by far the most beautiful and would be more inviting to tourists; thusly being better for the community. This suggestion was uproariously argued by another citizen because they had a grudge against the academy and not because it was better for Bethel. All too many in this beautiful community have their own agenda.

We are getting what we deserve by letting a few run our town. We better get our act together, if it's not too late. What is our agenda?

Believe it or not, still with the "Bethel Agenda" in mind, I remain,

Robert K. Scott

NO REASON TO COMPLAIN

To the Editor:

I read with interest the article "Signs point to the stripping of Mayville." People have no reason to be complaining. Hindsight is 20/20. All signs are in compliance. Drive down Church Street during the evening and tell me what is the first sign you see looking toward the mountains -- the Pat's Pizza sign.

As much as some of us may hate the word zoning, which I believed in when I was running for selectperson and still do, more of the same is going to happen, if zoning is not seriously considered for commercial development. As far as that goes, perhaps it should be considered for the residential area. After all, this is a clear example of the intermix of commercial and residential and what can happen to the area. There is nothing stopping a person from putting in a chicken farm next to any residence as long as they are in compliance, or even a factory of some sort.

People can say what they want, but with zoning, planned the way you want it, it could be the easiest way to save the town of Bethel, before all the internally illuminated signs destroy the ambience of our supposedly quaint little town.

I think it's a shame to destroy one of (whichever way you're going) the nicest ways into town or out of town, by continuing to intermingle commercial buildings in the Mayville area. The homes currently there will lose their value as residential, but will be worth their weight in gold as far as a commercial developer would be looking at them.

I really thought this area was one of Bethel's original historic districts and should remain as such, but I guess it isn't.

It's ironic that now, once new businesses start coming in and bright signs start going up, the people want to take another look at it. Where were they when these ordinances were being drawn up?

KIDS' CHRISTMAS THANKS

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Bethel Rotary Club, I would like to extend our thanks to all who helped make this year's Christmas For Children Campaign so successful. We received well over $6,000 from local people and businesses as well as from many out-of-state visitors and friends. Thanks to all of you. Many children awoke to find something under their tree on Christmas morning. Term limits

But Whitney argued there were other people willing and able to serve on the board, but afraid they could not defeat an incumbent for a seat.

"If we weren't here there would be five good people in this room serving the town," he said.

Town Clerk Merton Brown researched local term-limits after Whitney proposed the idea in November. Brown said he found only one town in Maine of roughly Bethel's size, Milo, that had term limits for selectmen.

A number of larger towns had adopted term limits for councilors, he said.

Whitney had originally suggested that term limits be put to a vote at the same time as the TIF vote scheduled for Feb. 14, but that vote has now been cancelled (see related story). Brown recommended last week that if the matter is to be put to voters it should at a regular Town Meeting.

Whitney said later that he was "surprised and embarrassed the selectmen chose not to present voters with the opportunity to vote on this issue."

But he said he had no plans to initiate a term limits petition himself, nor did he know of anyone else who planned to circulate such a petition.

back-up from the Oxford County Sheriff's Department, and that rules and regulations were applied more strictly to her than to male officers.

She also said Tuesday that the town was inconsistent in explaining the reasons for her dismissal, first saying that she was unwilling and unable to perform the job, later accusing her of gross misconduct, and finally characterizing her as a "troubled employee."

And there was no documentation in her personnel file to justify any of the town's various explanations, Bertram claimed.

In the town's response, Henley argued that Bertram "disregarded or disobeyed instructions and procedures from the manager and police chief when she disagreed with those instructions. She seldom followed directions from the chief or myself without an argument. Her paperwork was often incorrect or incomplete. It sometimes look repeated reminders to get it turned in at all. In addition, she repeatedly demanded that she be allowed to spend her 'on-call' time at home, which is in the opinion of the chief and the manager unreasonably distant for effective emergency response, even though she had committed at her hiring interview to remain within the town limits during her "on-call" hours. When that failed, she would cut her time by leaving the cruiser a few minutes early, claiming that though she was on her way home early, she was still within the on-call distance so we had no cause to complain. Finally, she enrolled for a class which would take place during her working hours without the consent of her department head."

Henley acknowledged that Chief Bellman's handling of Bertram had been less than perfect. "The chief had taken some wrong turns but his course was now corrected," Henley wrote. "Officer Bertram had confused being treated differently because of her lack of experience with being treated differently because she is a woman, but she now saw the difference. Everything should have been fine."

In his own response, Bellman contended that Bertram "was constantly calling me in the middle of the night for non-serious reasons. At one time she had called for back-up to which I responded due to a subject resisting arrest. Upon arrival at the scene (I found) Officer Bertram was standing facing the subject with her arms crossed, while the subject was doing the same. I asked her what the problem was and she stated that he would not let her arrest him."

Bellman also claimed Bertram "was subjected to all the same policies and procedures as myself and all the officers for the Bethel Police Department."

According to Bertram's lawyer, Brenda Buchanan of Bucksport, the next step in the process is a "conciliation conference" between the two parties, overseen by the MHRC.

If the conciliation does not settle the matter, the MHRC finding of "reasonable grounds" can be introduced as evidence in a civil trial, Buchanan said.

Bear study

next season," Spangler said.

But snowmaking is only one of Sugarbush's needs. The resort is also laid out inefficiently, with duplicate sets of facilities on two mountains, Sugarbush North and Sugarbush South.

There are seven lifts on the north peak and nine on the south, and no connecting trails between the two separate trail networks.

The networks are less than two miles apart as the crow flies, but they are five miles apart on the road. Spangler said skiers face spending 20 minutes or more on a shuttle bus if they wish to ski both mountains.

To provide "a true ski experience between two mountains," L.B.O. has proposed constructing a connecting "people mover" lift, running roughly from the mid-point of north trail network to the mid-point of south network.

The lift would cross the steep Slide Brook Basin. In 1983 the Forest Service approved the area for future ski development (three lifts and 120 acres of trails), but there are no plans now to develop those lifts and trails, Spangler said.

The people mover, however, has become a concern of a group of local residents who now claim the area is critical bear habitat.

The group wants the Vermont Fish and Wildlife department to study the area before approving the proposed link-up.

A state biologist examined the area recently and found extensive bear sign, including claw marks on trees.

Spangler said Sugarbush's own biologists have met with their state counterparts to explore the resort's options in light of Vermont's strict environmental regulations.

He said he was confident the bear study would not disrupt the proposed sale. "At this time we are only looking at a delay until we assess the situation."

But, he added, the prospective buyers believe it is crucial that the resort (which has been losing money for more than 10 years) be set on a profitable footing as soon as possible.

"And we can't afford a long permitting process or controversy," he said.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

The "Sudburies" team of John Brown and Jane Hosterman came back this year with a victory of nearly 2-1 after last year's narrow loss to the "Bethelite" team of Merton Brown and Cathy Newell. The final score in the annual Bethel trivia contest was 115 to 120. Society Director Stanley R. Howe again served as master of ceremonies; Margaret Joy Tibbetts was the judge, and Arlene Lowell scorekeeper.

During the business portion of the meeting, vice president Walter Hatch announced that the next meeting would be held on Feb. 2 and feature the annual historical film night. The "Gift of the Month" was a collection of Davis family diaries, genealogy, etc., from Leslie Davis Hathaway, Conway, N.H. Among other things contained in this collection are the diaries of Mrs. Hathaway's grandfather, Leslie Davis, from the 1950s and early 1960s. Vice-president Hatch announced that the 1994 Annual Fund Campaign ended with over $8,000 from nearly 300 donors and thanked all those who contributed so generously. Following the program, the refreshments for the evening were announced by Persis Post.

DEP praises Bethel oil clean-up

BETHEL--The Maine Department of Environmental Protection officials are calling the clean-up of a recent oil spill at Brooks Bros. storage tank area on lower Main Street a good example of "community effort and cooperation." About 325 gallons of oil leaked onto the ground due to a blown fuel pump seal, according to Jack Brooks. The spill was contained by a dike system designed to accommodate as much as 20,000 gallons of oil, Brooks said. The DEP was notified, and oversaw the clean-up, according to Nathan Thompson, a DEP oil and hazardous waste specialist. Most of the oil was pumped into containers. Absorbent cloths were used to pick up some of the spill, and an oil/water mixture was pumped off the ground and taken to Clean Harbors in South Portland for recycling. A bucket loader scooped up 15 cubic yards of contaminated soil, which will be recycled and used to build roads. A local contractor supplied dirt to fill in the hole. Thompson said he was pleased local contractors made themselves available to help the clean-up effort. Some state or federal money may be available to help Brooks Bros. defer the cost of cleaning up the spill, he said.

Woodstock needs three planners

WOODSTOCK--Town officials are looking for three people interested in serving on the Planning Board. The seven-person board dropped to five members last month when Chairman Brian Dunham resigned. Another member, Herbert Lyon, is away for the winter, according to Town Manager Vern Maxfield, leaving just four available board members. "If there's no interest, I'm thinking about researching if a town planner would be the best way to go," Maxfield said. Two regular members and one alternate position are now unfilled, he said. Another regular member will be needed in March when Margaret Hand's term is up. Hand cannot be reappointed, because she has reached her term limit. Even with the shortage of Planning Board members, the board will not ask voters to abolish term limits. Similar Town Meeting articles have been soundly defeated at the last two annual meetings.

Revaluation complaints still coming in GREENWOOD--Gordon Morgan of Patch Mountain complained to selectmen last week that his revaluation is too high. Morgan's appeal was presented by former town tax assessor Herbert Dunham. Morgan's 100-year-old home was valued at $69,000, said Dunham, who claimed the assessment for the home's basement and framing is incorrect. Selectmen asked Morgan to put his complaint in writing and send it to the town's assessing agent.

Newry hires recycling coordinator

NEWRY--Selectmen appointed Leslie Thurston last week as recycling coordinator. His duties will include helping the people who do presorting for the town and inspecting the recycling bins two or three times a week, according to selectman Steve Wight. Selectmen created the position because nonrecyclable materials have been found in several bins. Workers at Oxford County Regional Solid Waste must remove the unwanted material, adding extra expense. Several times over the last few months, Newry's report cards from OCSRW have not been good, according to Solid Waste Committee Chairman Sigmund Sysko.

CEO working on certification

WOODSTOCK--Selectmen here have received a letter from the Department of Economic and Community Development notifying them a one-year grace period for the town's uncertified Code Enforcement Officer has expired. Town CEO Mark Stearns was allowed a year by the department to complete his training. But he still lacks training in zoning and land use, according to Town Manager Vern Maxfield. The letter states that actions taken by the town while Stearns is serving as CEO may be challenged. Stearns plans to complete his training and take a certifying exam by the end of April, Maxfield said.

Dixfield man awakened by UFO

DIXFIELD--A Dixfield freelance writer was awakened last week at 5:45 a.m. by an "overwhelming roar" and a bright light. "It sounded like machinery, like a metallic sound, just like a jet's thrust reversers," said Terry Karkos. "I didn't see anything, but the light just filled the window." Karkos' bedroom window was covered with blinds and faces west. He estimates his house is 10 or 15 yards from Route 17, but said he didn't think the noise and light was from a passing vehicle. The noise also woke up Karkos' grandmother, but she did not report seeing a light. A Smithsonian Observatory astronomer from Cambridge, Mass. said there were reports the same day of a fireball east of Marblehead, Mass. Fireballs are caused by meteors burning up in the earth's atmosphere. The astronomer said there was no way to know whether the phenomenon Karkos witnessed was related to the Marblehead fireball. The director of the Mutual UFO Network of Maine said there have been 22 unidentified object sightings in the Bangor area in the last two weeks, but he did not know of any sightings in western Maine.

SCORE to publish service directory

PARIS--The Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE) plans to publish a directory of professional services for those who want help strengthening or forming new businesses. The directory will list accountants, lawyers, certified public accountants, financial advisers and other professionals who are available to help businesses. Any individual or firm who would like a listing in the directory should submit: name, address and phone number, a specific contact person and a brief description of the area of expertise. The information should be sent to SCORE, 166 Main St., South Paris, Maine 04281.

Turtles in danger in Maine

A group of conservationists and scientists has petitioned the federal government to add the wood turtle to the endangered species list. Restore: The North Woods, a forest preservation group based in Massachusetts, released the petition last week. It contends the turtle is disappearing from its habitat from Maine to Minnesota and south to Virginia. Major threats to the turtle include habitat destruction, collection for pet trade, logging and development near shorelines, and water pollution. The petition asks the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to designate critical habitat, and consider an emergency listing, which would prevent collectors from taking more turtles, while the government evaluates the petition.

Gun "experts" ignoring safety

CHICAGO--A recent survey found that people with firearms training are more likely to keep their guns loaded and unlocked at home, a practice most experts agree is unsafe. A survey of 800 gun owners found that more than half had formal firearms training--usually in the military. Of those with training, 27 percent kept a loaded, unlocked gun. Only 14 percent of people without training did so. The survey was commissioned by the Harvard School of Public Health, and was published in The Journal of the American Medical Association.

Wolves may return to the Rockies

SEATTLE--A federal judge refused last week to stop an effort to bring wolves to the western Rocky Mountains. The animals were exterminated in the area more than 50 years ago. The ruling allows biologists to capture the first of dozens of wolves in Canada, and release them possibly within a few weeks in Yellowstone National Park, and central Idaho wilderness. The judge wrote in his decision that opponents of the wolf-release program had offered only "fear and speculation" that the livestock would be lost to wolves. Federal biologists have been working for nearly 20 years to bring wolves back to the West. The biologist say the wolves will thrive on deer, elk and moose herds that are close to all-time high populations.

Many New Englanders still uninsured

BOSTON--The latest U.S. Census statistics show that 12 percent of New Englanders are still without health insurance. The figure hasn't changed for more than four years. The statistics show that the number of people covered by private health insurance is shrinking, and having no insurance is becoming more concentrated among the working poor.

volume, high-quality brewing, and wanted to try it at home themselves, he said.

There's also a degree of artistry involved, he said. People take pride in turning grains, sugar and yeast into a very drinkable brew.

"Craft brewers take a special pride in what they make," Nivus said. "When you make it yourself you can make it as strong or light as you want, or as rich as you like. You can add flavor. People put spruce flavor, fruit, smoked malt, garlic, chocolate, spices and more in beer."

Jack Miserochchi of Andover has been making homebrew for about two years. He started with beer kits but has worked his way up to all-grain brewing. He now selects his grains, crushes and cooks them into mash himself.

"I enjoy the variety you can get from it," Miserochchi said, "and the quality is at least as good as you can buy and a lot of times better. It's less expensive and fun to do."

His advice to beginners is "pay attention to the sanitation. Pay attention to details and read several books."

He also recommended patience and perseverance.

"I do all-grain brewing now and that takes me eight to ten hours," he said. "That's me, other people may be able to do it quicker, but that's start to finish. Beginners won't need that long. It takes a couple hours with a kit. It takes a while to get from the beginner stage to where I am now. People should start out with a lot of good advice and the necessary equipment. When you get into the all-grain brewing the variety is almost endless. Start out slow and don't let the failures screw you up because they're bound to come, you'll use them as a learning process. My failures have all been because of complete lack of knowledge or experimentation. It's not something beginners should have to contend with."

Several other local homebrewers agreed with Miserochchi, saying making your own beer is an inexpensive and rewarding hobby.

T.L. Magee of Woodstock got a homebrew kit as a wedding gift from his wife.

"When we got married," he said, "Monica gave me a homebrew kit. I don't think she wanted me to stop drinking fancy beer, just stop spending so much money on it. I can make two and-a-half cases for a really good price and I can create a beer exactly the way I want it. I can adjust things to make what I'm looking for."

Magee said to tell beginners, be fearless, go for it. I've never known anybody who tried it and didn't like it. You can't screw it up, it would be like screwing up a microwave cooker."

Larry Risko of Bethel said it's the artistic aspect of brewing that appeals to him.

"I enjoy creating something," he said. "I have a background as a chef and this combines a hobby with my natural talent."

Paul Hausman of Albany has been brewing for 20 years. For him it's simply a matter of saving money, he said.

"It's cheap and it's good," Hausman said. "I started making it before there were all these micro-brews available, and imported beer was expensive."

Former Bethel veterinarian Jim Hudson of Newcastle has also been brewing for a couple of years.

"Some of my buddies were doing it," Hudson said. "It tasted good, so I decided to try it. I do it the sissy way. I use a kit, it's good for people who don't have a lot of time. But now that I'm retired I hope to get into the next step."

Drinking homebrew can spoil you, according to John Gillis of Bethel. Gillis brewed for a couple of years, but since he moved to Bethel he's been too busy with his new business, Pat's Pizza, to make beer. He hopes to get back to it soon, he said.

"It felt good doing something for yourself and drinking your own product," Gillis said. "You have to have time to do it and set it aside for yourself. What ends up happening is you get spoiled and you don't buy domestic beer anymore. When you get off homebrew you buy imported or specialty beers."

It's hard to miss

By WENDY HANSCOM

All it takes to mix up that first batch of homebrew is a little planning, the right ingredients, some equipment, patience and a thirst for the end product.

You might be able to scrounge up enough odds and ends around the house to make equipment for mixing and fermenting beer, but most people start with a homebrew kit, according to brewer David Nivus of Bethel. The kits range in price from about $30 to $50, he said.

Most kits come with a funnel, siphon hose, hydrometer, bottle capper and plastic "fermenter."

Beginning brewers will also need bottles (the nonscrew returnable type or champagne bottles), bottle caps, a three- to four-gallon pot and a "beer kit."

Although brewers can boil and mash their own grains, most beginners make at least their first few batches from already prepared mixes, Nivus said.

Here's a general look at how you do it. Boil a can of hop-flavored malt, malt extract syrup and six quarts of water for 15 minutes in a large pot.

Pour the hot malts and more clean, cold water into the fermenter. When the mixture cools to below 78 degrees, use the hydrometer to measure the specific gravity of the beer mix. Record the figure and add the yeast to the brew, which ferments for one or two weeks. Test the beer periodically to see if its specific gravity is within the range the recipe recommends.

Once the desired range is reached, mix a small amount of some type of sugar with the beer and bottle and cap it and allow the beer to age for a week or two.

The aging process allows carbonation to build up, giving the beer its fizz and head. Brewers start out with about 5 gallons of beer and end up with a couple quarts less than that. Some beer is lost when it's siphoned away from sediment, or from sneaking a few tastes.

Most beginners are successful on their first try, Nivus said. The yeast does all the work, digesting and converting sugars in the brew to alcohol and carbon dioxide. "Wild" bacteria or yeast can get into the mix, but nothing that grows in beer will kill you, Nivus said, though some things can spoil the taste.

"The best thing for beginning brewers to remember is cleanliness," he said. "They shouldn't worry too much either, for the most part beer is a very tolerant food product. It takes a lot of abuse and still comes out fine. If something bad does happen to the brew you're talking about a $15 loss. Ten thousand years ago, the Mesopotamians made beer. People in the Middle Ages made beer rather than drink the water. It's something that's been happening for thousands of years without art or science. If you mix the stuff together, the beer will make itself. You just need to check on it here and there."

The first-time brewer should set aside at least a morning or afternoon to get started, Nivus said. Once the mixing process is started it needs to be completed and can't be pushed off for a few hours or days, he said.

Books on homebrewing include "The New Joy of Homebrewing" by Charlie Papazian, Avon Books and the "Complete Handbook of Homebrewing" by David Miller, Garden Way Publishing.

Two magazines on brewing are: "Zymurgy," published five times a year by American Homebrewers Association, P.O. Box 1679, Boulder, Co., 80306, and "Brewing Techniques," published bi-monthly by New Wine Press Inc., P.O. Box 3222, Eugene, Or., 97403-9917.

A few stores with homebrew supplies are: Good Food Store, Bethel; Axis Natural Foods, Auburn and Harbor Homebrew, Whip & Spoon and RSVP shops in Portland.

Did you ever stop to think how habits of speech change through the years?

When I was young, I recall some of the older people had a very terse, expressive way of speaking. Many of the expressions were to the point. There was no question ever, as to what the speaker meant.

An aunt often said, "A stitch in time saves nine," as she taught the art of mending. She also often quoted, if someone became lackadaisical, "Don't put off until tomorrow what you can do today."

Some people were as poor as Job's turkey but were high in the estimation of many because they were "as honest as the day is long."

The names of animals, birds, flowers were used frequently. When a mother expressed every mood of her husband's; he was sometimes as mad as a hornet, as cross as a bear, or his bark was worse than his bite. At other times he was as frisky as a colt full of ginger or proud as a peacock. He could never get out of hand. Maybe she would never let him.

An elderly lady, that I knew, if upset about persons would refer to them as sour as a pickle, an old windbag, ugly as an old mud fence, or as silly as a goose.

At my young age then, I wondered how a fence could be mud or a goose silly.

These expressions of course were never used in the person's hearing. So when the speaker became calm the meaning was reversed to as harmless as a dove.

Little children were as cute as a button, growing like a weed, pretty as a picture or knee high to a grasshopper.

The young girls were welcomed and they loved being around for they were fresh as a daisy, shy as a violet or sweet as honey. These words made them feel special, even if they were not.

When it was cold and still and everything covered with snow, the expressions were black as night and the dead of winter.

High noon and crack of dawn, or anyone worth his salt was out of bed at this time were common sayings.

Grandpa used to say men were as strong as an ox and of course could lift anything, while there were other men weak as a kitten and useless.

Little boys were at times as awkward as cows, especially at a time they knocked something over or if the woodbox did not get filled on time.

There are many more phrases. These old oddities sparked the conversation then but not so much now.

But the solid values in life were taught.

Habits as well as speech change with time and are often looked down upon as hackneyed, crude, or never used by educated people. However blunt, speech surely had its purpose. It usually had some merit. That, we cannot deny. The people believed in hard, honest work. It gave them a great deal of satisfaction. There was no concern about "keeping up with the Joneses."

Milton and Eleanor Inman had a family gathering on Monday, Jan. 2, and served a turkey dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. John Belts were in Portland the last week in December to see John's doctor.

To all those who missed my column, and to those concerned, my health is in pretty good shape for the shape it's in, as the saying goes. I just have been very busy with the holidays and a half-grown hound puppy, who is a pretty strong-willed youngster; and as I write this he is trying to see if he can swallow a piece of plastic he found from somewhere. When I look, he is busily chewing on his bone, which is right beside it, but my ears can tell the difference. Did I mention he is sneaky as well as self-willed? He also shows a fairly high intelligence when it suits his purpose. He has noticed that standing by the door is likely to capture my attention, but more likely than not he only wants to look outside to see if there is a cat to pester or if something looks or smells differently than the last time he was out -- about five minutes previously. His reasoning power is pretty high. I had an old ace bandage which he latched onto to drag around the house, and he wanted me to play tug-of-war with him. As he kept backing up and the bandage kept stretching, he put his paw on it, dropped the end he was holding, quickly chewed through it and brought me the smaller portion to play tug-of-war with. Now, if he would only remember he is not to get out of the car at every stop --!

Val and Caroline Green and the Jim Ryans were at their house here following Christmas for a few days. There is a new puppy at their house, too, only she is much bigger -- looks like a golden lab. But we compared puppy stories and decided big or small they are pretty much alike.

My son, Ralph, came from his home in Colchester, Vt., the Friday before Christmas. We attended church Christmas morning but held off on our tree until Tuesday because Marcia Smith planned to come on Monday. She and Jon got themselves a 1992 Dodge Spirit for Christmas, and they met us in Bangor and she continued on with us while Jon went back to Presque Isle, where he is now working full-time at Burrelle's Transcripts. Because Marcia was on semester break, she was able to stay until Friday when we took her back to Bangor and put her on the bus for the return home. While here, we all visited Marilyn Mills and Mary Mills at North Norway and Carolyn Colby and sons Brian and Carl at West Greenwood. I also visited Leona Flint in Bethel one afternoon. Ralph return to Colchester on Saturday.

Vera Cross celebrated her birthday on Jan. 3. She shared a couple of her "birthday biscuits" with me. They were very good.

Now I've told you a lot of my news, where is yours? If I'm not here, please feel free to leave your name and number with the answering machine. I finally have one that works.

Happy Birthday to Sylvia Wight on Jan. 11, and Julia Goodwin of Belfast on Jan. 13, to Gail Sysko on Jan. 14, and Bret Bachelder (Ras and Karlene's grandson). "Always remember to forget the troubles that passed away, but never forget to remember the blessings that come each day...." Happy Birthday to all!

The Windy Valley Sno-mobile Club met at the Town Building on Jan. 3, with Owen Wight presiding. Don Gray read the last meeting's report and said that his wife Sylvia (who is the secretary) had a bad hand when she fell on their dog, Don, who is also the safety officer for the club, reported that was the only accident, but it had nothing to do with snowmobiling. The treasurer's report was read by Leon Dunn, trail master, instead of the treasurer, Bob Lowell, because he had to baby-sit that night. M.S.A. director/alternate Sylvia and Bill Wight reported on their December meeting in Bangor and on two $50 scholarships to be given. Sylvia read a letter from the Oxford County Arc. Ride-In. There are still tickets and maps for sale. There was a lot of discussion about the trails by Leon Dunn, trail master. Coffee, etc., was enjoyed after the meeting adjourned.

Please be snowmobile smart -- snowmobiling under the influence or reckless operation is illegal. Safe trails are for everyone. You are either part of the problem or part of the solution. Slow down! For snowmobile safety classes, call 287-5220.

Members of the "Newry Bowling Gang": Karlene Bachelder, Gil Seeley, Sylvia Wight, Eleanor Davis, and Olive Anderson were at Oxford Lanes, Rumford, last week. On the overall scores, Gil was high on the triples and singles. Of the "Righties," Sylvia was high on both the triples and singles. Gil had two spares, Karlene had one spare, and Sylvia had one spare.

You can fool some of the people some of the time, I guess. Glidden's Food-Liner had a notice in the Jan. 2 flyer saying, "every Tuesday is Senior Citizen Day, 10 percent off, excluding milk, alcohol and cigarettes." When I went on Tuesday to take advantage of it, they acted as if they didn't know anything about it, and the flyer in the store didn't show it, but the one from the mail did. I spent over $17 for groceries. It's not important about the money, it's the principle of the thing. I always liked to shop there, and I still will, but the "fine print" says they are not responsible for the errors. How can that be? How can such a mistake happen?

We send our sympathy to Sis Post on the passing of her husband Archie. "God giveth a quietness at last."

As I write this, I hear that Dick Clark is in the hospital for observation.

A very pleasant New Year in 1995 to all. Bill Bancroft was able to return home for the holidays after being a patient at the Norway hospital and Convalescent Home. He is receiving therapy at home and is able to get around with a cane.

Norma and David Salway spent Christmas Day with the Bernie Gatchells in Portland. I spent Christmas weekend with Sylvia Swan and family in Otisfield. While there, Ethel treated me to see "Little Women" at the Auburn Mall Cinema. She also rented the movie, "Miracle on 34th Street," for all to enjoy. Sarah Bean drove me to South Paris on Wednesday and Norma met me there for the ride home. She also drove me to Rumford on Thursday for my blood test. We called on Mrs. Dottie Adams in Hanover.

Kassi and Kaity Gatchell of Portland were overnight visitors of her parents on Thursday. Just as darkness was settling in we lost the electric power for a couple of hours, so we ate supper by candlelight.

On Friday, Norma and David hosted our family's annual Christmas party. Attending, also, were Herbie and Dottie Adams of Hanover, Erin Adams and friend Daryl Gurney from Portland; Brandon and Tara Salway of Old Orchard Beach; Mrs. Ethel Turner, Sarah, David and Jon Bean and David Turner of Otisfield; Sylvia Swan, Sheri, Tami and Christopher Swan from Auburn; Kassi and Kaity Gatchell and myself.

Recent callers here have been Nelson and Betty Smith, West Bethel, Mrs. Sandy Cohen from Massachusetts, and Mrs. Cindy Wakefield of

East Stoneham

by

Well, most of the new 1995 calendars are in place and memos written on them already of things to do and when. It seems to fill up quite fast.

Albert and Mary Fox and a few other couples went to Jackson snowmobiling this past weekend. They found it fairly good. They had a good time anyway.

On Monday, Jan. 9, about 30 people showed up at a snowmobile bridge off the Hut Road from Evergreen Valley Road to take part in the dedication of the bridge to Bill Hunt, who has done so much in the building of it and for his trail making, grooming and all sorts of other things for the Stoncham Knight Riders. Scott Ramsey from Gardiner was there and gave a short speech. A video was taken of the program and Bill Green will show parts of it on his sports program on T.V. Hunt was quite surprised about the honor and thanked the group and said it was all due to teamwork of many of the members, not just him. Van Sullivan, a member of the club also gave a short speech. Coffee and refreshments were served afterwards at the home of Anne and Bob Wyman.

Gilbert Mfg. Corp. of Locke Mills has opened a new saw mill on the Bisbee Road in North Waterford. A mill was formerly owned by Dwight Grover of Stoneham and had been closed for quite some time. Construction of the new mill was started in September and will be called D L

G Square and Dowel Co. and will employ 10 people starting in January 1995, and hopefully more people as time goes on.

On my way to Norway yesterday, I noticed there were about a dozen fishing houses out on Little Pennessewassee (Hobbs Pond) with a lot of cars along the shore. I guess they could hardly wait for Jan. 1st to get there. Good luck fishermen! We used to do that on Virginia Lake, but not any more. It was fun and we did get quite a lot of pickerel.

I forgot to give you readers a message last week so will do it now. Have a Happy, Peaceful, Healthy New Year!

Happy New Year! May the new year be a happy and healthy one for one and all.

What a beautiful Monday morning we awoke to! Everything so nice and clean and white. I didn't have to venture out, so probably it did make a difference.

Those present have been: Mary and Dan Jones and Ryan of Mansfield, Ohio; Katrina Stevens of Norway; Timothy and Bobby Jo Stevens of Portland; Thomas Stevens from Atlanta, Ga.; Ernest Gurney of Coronado, Calif.; Matti and Dyanne Gurney, Robert, Kelly, Matti and Katherine of Norway; Gardner and Kim Gurney, Sarah, Rachel and Caitlin of Delanson, N.Y.; and Margaret Gurney of South Paris.

South Woodstock

by Andrea Wing

Claribel Poland has informed me that word has been received that Lloyd

Poland of Big Rapids, Mich., passed away on May 14. Mrs. Poland wrote and said that she has now moved to South Carolina to be near her youngest boy.

Lloyd Poland has been in this area many times to get information on the Poland genealogy and has a published book on the Polands. I have one of the books, and it is very interesting and informative. Mrs. Poland said she has a few of the books left. If anyone interested can contact me at 207-674-2102, I will put you in touch with her.

Tommy Poland had a busy Christmas holiday. On Christmas Eve, she visited with her husband Vernon at Ledgeview Nursing Home and then went to her daughter and husband's, Sandra and Mike Monzo, in South Paris, for supper and exchange of gifts. The Monzo's children, Jamie, Tara, Erica and Ian, were glad to have their Nana there to see them open gifts.

Christmas morning, Tommy traveled to Bethel to have a Christmas breakfast with Judi and Dave Brown, Tammy and Vernon Davis and children, Bailey and Emma, and Aaron Bean. A good time was had by all and gifts were opened. Tommy then went to the nursing home to have Christmas dinner with Vernon. Their daughter, Sherry Poland, joined them and spent the afternoon with her mother and father.

Christmas evening, it was back to Curtis Hill to son Dennis and Debbie's home for gifts and lunch. Heath and Brandy, grandchildren, also were glad Nana could come to visit.

Monday, Tommy went to West Bethel to daughter Tracy and Ken Grover's for another tree and dinner. Those attending were: Samantha Poland, Alex, and twins Ken and Brooke Grover. Rachel, Kyle, Cody, Cailin, and Casey Curtis came from South Portland to join in the festivities.

One night last week, Pete and Laurene Appleby and Jon and Pete and Laurene's great-granddaughter came for a short visit.

On Dec. 31, Ricky and Lisa Mack celebrated their wedding anniversary by spending the afternoon together and going out to supper. On Jan. 1, Lisa celebrated her birthday. Lisa's father, mother and sister came and visited in the afternoon.

January birthdays: Jane Chandler, Matthew Moore, Joyce Howe, James Gallagher and Lisa Mack. I hope you all have a nice and happy day!

In another paper this week, I noticed a picture of Taneli Koskela, son of Linda Koskela at the Finnish American Heritage Society's New Year's Day Lunch. Taneli attends Woodstock Elementary School in Bryant Pond. It's good to see the younger generation interested in their heritage.

Sarah and Jessie Hart spent Tuesday with me this week. Sarah didn't have school, as she attends Oxford Hills and they did not go Tuesday. Jessie stayed at school was called off because of the snowstorm.

Larry Billings, curator, Woodstock Historical Society, reports that the society now has a fine collection of books on New England. People can learn about the region at the museum. The historical museum is both a cultural and historical center for the area.

Quote of the Week: "May our life be like arithmetic -- friends added, enemies subtracted, joys multiplied and trouble divided."

Upton

by Arline Bernier

Amy and Jerry Geiling had a great idea to ward off winter doldrums. Amy had a lovely painting that she had done on an ice saw of wolves in a winter scene, which they were going to offer for sale by reducing the price $1 a day. A few days prior to the lowering of the hammer, a customer from the Coast snapped it up for her gift shop. Well, now what to do? Jerry said, "Great Guns." "I'll just put up this great gun for a fun deal. It is a Ted Williams' 12-gauge, pump shotgun, model 200, poly choke in excellent condition starting at $239, which will drop in price $1 per day until further notice." The firing shot will be at the store opening on Wednesday, Jan. 11, at which time the price will begin the winter slide.

The school board met at the Town Office on Monday. Sue Nelson, Upton representative at NOVA, gave a report of the progress. She has attended each meeting. A discussion of the budget ensued. School Agent Ron Jenkins gave a report of comparative costs of sending Upton pupils to Errol, N.H., and SAD44. His report indicated that Errol's costs would be very much higher than the present ones.

The Upton school board met Thursday at the Town Office. There were no bids offered for plowing and maintenance of town roads.

Changing seasons, changing times, changing weather. All we seem to see these days is change. As 1995 begins, I hope everyone is ready to rush full-scale into another 12 months of life. However, in this time of extreme change, let's not forget to hold onto the past; hold onto our memories; and hold onto the times that are gone.

Congratulations to Lori Davis on her recent college acceptance at the University of Maine at Farmington and Green Mountain College.

Lee Billings remains in Stephens Memorial Hospital as I write this. There was a hymn sing on Friday, Dec. 30, at the North Woodstock Meeting House.

A warm welcome is extended to the Savage family, who will be spending a few months in Pinhook.

This week's news columns were particularly enjoyable. It was nice to read about everyone's Christmas get-togethers.

I went shopping in Auburn with my friend Jenn last week.

That's it from North Woodstock. I hope that everyone is enjoying the start of 1995, and staying warm in what is one of the coldest months of the year!

PARENTS AND TOTS' CROSS COUNTRY SKI PROGRAM

Parents with young children are invited to join an exciting program designed to introduce the joys of cross country skiing. TAXES

Strategy #2 - The joy of giving can also mean lower taxes

Being charitable can make you feel good, and it might cut your tax bill. To get a tax benefit for your generosity, you have to follow certain rules.

To begin with, only taxpayers who itemize deductions get a tax break for charitable contributions. Also, you must give to qualified charities, not individuals, and you can't deduct the value of personal services you perform for charities.

You must obtain a written receipt from the charity when you give $250 or more, or when you contribute $75 or more and receive something of value from the charity (such as tickets to an event or a T-shirt).

Many activities have taken place between the meetings of Dec. 1 and Jan. 6. Sixty people, members of the Post and Unit and their families, attended the annual Christmas Party on Dec. 8 and enjoyed the dinner prepared by some of the Unit members. On Dec. 18, 12 members of the Post and Unit met at Ledgeview Nursing Home for dinner with the veterans who were able to come to the Activity Room. The Oxford County Council meeting on Dec. 21 at South Paris

Foster-Carroll Post was attended by three members who reported on those activities. Special recognition was given to those who took part in The Battle of the Bulge 50 years ago. On Dec. 29, a meal and reception was catered for Meredith and George Parker. They are members of the Navy Band and stationed in Norfolk, Va. They were married last June after returning from playing at the D-Day ceremonies in Europe, but this was the first opportunity for a reception. Both young people have now been signed up as members of Jackson-Silver Post. At the Jan. 5 meeting, donations were voted to the Chapel of Four Chaplains and to the Wilton Auxiliary Unit for replacement of equipment lost when the Hosmer-Edwards Post Home burned. The next meeting of Oxford County Council will be at the Norway Post for the Oratorical Contest on Jan. 17. The annual Mid-winter Conference of Legion and Auxiliary is Jan. 20-22 in Brunswick. Jackson-Silver Post and Unit will meet again on Feb. 2.

FROM THE

Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce

Many thanks to Dave and Anne Carter of Carter's Cross Country Ski Center for hosting a Chamber's Business After Hours on Sunday in celebration of the National Ski Fest. Also thanks to Tony Simpson of Bethel Outdoor Adventure for giving sled dog rides and showing his slides. Massage was provided by Therapeutic Massage--a great big thanks to them as well. All members are invited to a Business After Hours/Election of Directors at the Cross Street Cafe on Tuesday, Jan. 17, from 5-7 p.m. The chamber board of directors will meet Thursday, Jan. 19, for a planning retreat. Adult Education

The Winter Term of Adult Education in the Telstar region will begin on Jan. 17.

The most popular offerings so far have been Tai Chi, Introduction to the Internet, and Welding. Tai Chi and Welding are full, limited space remains in the Monday Internet class, and space is available in all other classes. To register, call the Adult Education office at 824-2780.

Changes from the brochure

The following changes have been made from the winter course brochure, to check on times and availability call the Adult Ed. office.

The Quilting class will meet on Wednesdays, starting Jan. 25 for three weeks with Mary Brown. The class will feature the use of quilting techniques to make decorative pillows. The course is planned for both novices and those with experience and will provide a low-cost project with scraps. Fee is $15.

Other classes beginning at the start of the winter term include Introductory Conversational French with Ann Marie Fiore. This class will provide the basics for the traveler or those using French in the workplace. It will meet on Tuesdays starting Jan. 17 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Telstar for 6 weeks. The fee is $20.

First Aid will begin on Jan. 19 and will run for two weeks on Thursdays at the Bethel Area Health Center. Jeannine Thornton is the instructor for the Red Cross Standard course, which includes adult CPR. The time is 6 to 10 p.m. The fee is $25 and includes a book.

An investment seminar entitled Minimizing Taxes on Social Security and Investment Income, will be offered on Wednesday, Jan. 18 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Telstar with Jeffrey Weeks, financial consultant with the Bethel Savings Bank. The fee is $5, with a discount to $4 for those 62 and over. The snow date is Jan. 25.

Record-keeping/Accounting will begin on Wednesday, Jan. 18. This is an on-going lab-type course taught in cooperation with NOVA by Cynthia Kelley. The class hours are 6 to 9 p.m. in the evening. Those attending select from modules in record-keeping, accounting I or accounting II depending on their past experience. The pace is individualized and the number of weeks is determined by student need. New students are accepted throughout the winter and spring. The fee is $20 plus books.

Income Tax Preparation will be offered on Tuesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. for five weeks starting on Jan. 17 with Richard Carpenter of H&R Block. The class is a hands-on forms approach to personal preparation of federal and state income tax forms. The fee is $20.

Two day-time classes in Writing will begin at the Adult Learning Center during the week of Jan. 17.

Women's Writing Group meets on Wednesday from 1 to 3 p.m. with Jeanette Baldrige. The group will explore issues of special concern and interest to women using the writing process. The class will run for seven weeks. The fee is $20, with a discount to $12 for those 62 and over.

Creative Writing will be held at the Learning Center on Thursday afternoons from 1 to 4 with Jeanette Baldrige. This popular class will run for seven weeks and is conducted in a workshop style for beginning and advanced writers including class instruction, evaluation and support. The fee is $20 with a senior citizen discount for those 62 and over.

Art Basics is a new course this term to be held at the Learning Center on Thursday nights, starting Jan. 19, from 7 to 9 p.m. with Louisa Abarno. The class will cover design fundamentals and a multi-media approach to drawing and painting. The fee is $20 plus a $5 lab.

Fly-tying is back on Wednesday nights, starting Jan. 18, from 7 to 9 p.m. with Milton Inman. The class is designed to introduce beginners to the thrill of creating their own flies. The class is open to high school students on a space available basis as well as to adults. The fee is $20 plus a $7 lab fee. Those who have fly-tying equipment should bring it to the first class.

Bird-carving class salutes the promise of spring with their new project -- a full-sized robin. Mike Murphy will offer a choice of sections on Tuesday or Thursday nights from 6:30-9:30 at Telstar. The class will run for seven weeks, with a fee of $20 plus $15 lab. Reminder: Those 62 and over qualify for a discount to $12 on the registration fee.

A selection of exercise and fitness classes is included in the winter schedule. Louise Abarno will conduct an Aerobics class, featuring a beginner/intermediate Hi/Lo class meeting on Mondays and Thursdays from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. at the Learning Center for seven weeks. The fee is $25. The class will begin on Thursday, Jan. 19, because of the Monday Holiday in observance of Dr. Martin Luther King Day.

Computer courses

Adult Education offers a wide selection of computer courses. Pre-registration is essential as space is limited so that each student will have the exclusive use of a machine. Fees are $25 per course.

Introduction to Computers, for the beginner, will be offered at five different times this winter. All classes run for five weeks. File Organization with Ed Latham will focus on hard drive optimization for those who want to maximize their system and to organize their files for ease of use. The class will meet on Tuesdays from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. and is designed for those interested in home or business use.

ARCHIBALD 'ARCHIE' POST

Archibald Thomson "Archie" Post, 90, died in Rumford Community Hospital on Thursday, Dec. 29, 1994, following a lingering illness.

He was born in Hinesburg, Vt., May 18, 1904, the son of Frank M. and Bessie (Miles) Post.

He attended schools in Saratoga, N.Y., where he was an outstanding athlete in baseball, basketball, and track. He captained the first sectional all-star team ever in Saratoga in 1921. Archie graduated from Saratoga High School in 1922, took a year off from school to earn money for his college education and entered UVM in 1923.

At UVM, Archie earned eight letters: two for cross country, four for basketball, and two in track. He graduated from UVM in 1927, and was president of his class for 60 years, resigning in 1987. His two daughters and a granddaughter graduated from UVM, which made Archie very proud.

He received his Ed.M. from UVM in 1941, and retired as associate professor emeritus in 1969, after 40 years of service as coach of cross country and track. He served as director of physical education from 1942 to 1962.

For 40 years, Archie's philosophy of coaching was instilled in his athletes. "A teacher of physical education fails in his job as an educator if his sole and driving aim is to increase the skills of his players that he and his team must win. The first and foremost aim of every teacher or coach must be to make his boys and girls better men and women."

At the time of his retirement, he was living in Jericho, Vt., where he was a past town auditor. He was an active participant in the activities of the Second Congregational Church of Jericho, at various times serving as deacon and on various church committees.

Fly fishing for trout and salmon was one of Archie's great loves, along with hunting and gardening; therefore, upon retirement, Archie and his wife, "Sis," moved to Maine where they owned a hunting and fishing camp.

He became active in the community, joining the West Parish Congregational Church in Bethel, Purity Chapter, OES, Sportsman of Maine, and most recently was a member of Bethel Lodge 97, A.F. & A.M. He had joined Burlington Lodge 100, A.F. & A.M., in 1932 and received his 60-year pin in 1992.

He was a member of the Vermont Board of Approved Basketball Officials for 20 years and was a past president. He was selected by the Vermont Headmasters Executive Committee to serve as the state director of basketball tournaments. He established and directed the annual Vermont High School Indoor Invitational Track and Relay Meet.

Among Archie's many honors and accomplishments were his election, in 1937, to Sigma Delta Psi, the national honorary athletic fraternity, of which he was elected to the board of directors.

In 1943 and 1944 he was director of physical training for a 1,200-man Air Crew Unit stationed at UVM. In 1963 he was named to the Helms Track Hall of Fame; in 1964 he received the distinguished Service Award from the Vermont Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation; in 1969 he received an award of merit from the Burlington Rotary Club and the Distinguished Service Award from the UVM Alumni.

In 1959 the university board of trustees approved a resolution naming the outdoor athletic complex "Post Field," in honor of his retirement. In 1970 he was inducted into the Athletic Hall of Fame at UVM, and in 1971 he received the Ralph LaPointe Award from the Vermont Sportswriters for his contributions to Vermont athletics.

He is survived by his wife, Persis "Sis" (Griswold) Post of Bethel; his two daughters, Dorothy Post Stevens of East Greenwich, R.I., and Jean Post Lamphear of Riverwoods, Ill.; six grandchildren; five great-grandchildren; and many cousins in the Starksboro and Hinesburg area.

Memorial gifts may be made to the Telstar Track Fund, c/o Telstar Athletic Department, Bethel, ME 04217, or the charity of one's choice.

He was born in Mason Township on Nov. 5, 1915, son of Benjamin and Gladys Bartlett Tyler. He was educated in Bethel schools and worked at several area lumber mills. He had lived in Bethel for most of his life.

In 1936 he married Ivy Brown, who survives. He was also married to Annie Verrill, who died in 1976. He married Norma Beckwith in 1972; she died in 1990.
